Contents

	List of figures	page viii
	Acknowledgments	ix
	List of abbreviations	xi
1	Introduction: feelings, languages, and cultures	1
1	Emotions or feelings?	1
2	Breaking the "hermeneutical circle"	7
3	"Experience-near" and "experience-distant" concepts	10
4	Describing feelings through prototypes	12
5		12
	mould our lives?	17
6	Why words matter	24
7	•	31
8	The Natural Semantic Metalanguage (NSM) as a tool f
	cross-cultural analysis	34
9	An illustration: "sadness" in English and in Russian	38
10	The scope of this book	45
2	Defining emotion concepts: discovering "cognitive
_	scenarios"	49
1	"Something good happened" and related concepts	50
2		60
3	"Bad things can happen" and related concepts	72
4	"I don't want things like this to happen" and related
	concepts	87
5	Thinking about other people	97
6	Thinking about ourselves	108
7	Concluding remarks	121

vi Contents

3	A case study of emotion in culture: German Angst	123
1	"Angst" as a peculiarly German concept	123
2	Heidegger's analysis of "Angst"	126
3	"Angst" in the language of psychology	128
4	Angst in everyday language	130
5	Defining Angst	134
6	The German Angst in a comparative perspective	137
7	Luther's influence on the German language	139
8	Eschatological anxieties of Luther's times	141
9	The meaning of Angst in Luther's writings	143
10	Martin Luther's inner life and its possible impact on the history of Angst	148
11	Luther's possible role in the shift from Angst "affliction"
	to Angst ''anxiety/fear''	151
12	The great social and economic anxieties of Luther's
	times	158
13	Uncertainty vs. certainty, Angst vs. Sicherheit	159
14	Certainty and Ordnung	163
15	Conclusion	166
4	Reading human faces	168
	· ·
1	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"?	168 168
	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the	168
1 2	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression"
1 2 3	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary"	168 172 175
1 2	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit?	168 172
1 2 3 4 5	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions"	168 172 175 177
1 2 3 4	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"?	168 172 175 177 178
1 2 3 4 5 6	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions"	168 172 175 177 178 180
1 2 3 4 5 6 7	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components	168 172 175 177 178 180 182
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components Summing up the assumptions	168 172 175 177 178 180 182 185
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components Summing up the assumptions In what terms should facial behaviour be described?	168 172 175 177 178 180 182 185
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components Summing up the assumptions In what terms should facial behaviour be described? Humans and primates: a unified framework for verbal,	168 172 175 177 178 180 182 185
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components Summing up the assumptions In what terms should facial behaviour be described? Humans and primates: a unified framework for verbal, non-verbal, and preverbal communication	168 172 175 177 178 180 182 185 186
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components Summing up the assumptions In what terms should facial behaviour be described? Humans and primates: a unified framework for verbal, non-verbal, and preverbal communication The meaning of eyebrows drawn together	168 172 175 177 178 180 182 185 186
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components Summing up the assumptions In what terms should facial behaviour be described? Humans and primates: a unified framework for verbal, non-verbal, and preverbal communication The meaning of eyebrows drawn together The meaning of "raised eyebrows"	168 172 175 177 178 180 182 185 186
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12	The human face: a "mirror" or a "tool"? From the "psychology of facial expression" to the "semantics of facial expression" "Social" does not mean "voluntary" What kind of "messages" can a face transmit? Messages are not "dimensions" "The face alone" or "the face in context"? Analysing facial behaviour into meaningful components Summing up the assumptions In what terms should facial behaviour be described? Humans and primates: a unified framework for verbal, non-verbal, and preverbal communication The meaning of eyebrows drawn together The meaning of "raised eyebrows" The meaning of the "wide open eyes" (with immobile	168 172 175 177 178 180 182 185 186 191 195 201

	Contents	vii
16	Conclusion: the what, the how, and the why in the reading of human faces	213
5	Russian emotional expression	216
1 2 3	Introduction Emotion and the body Conclusion	216 219 234
6	Comparing emotional norms across languages and cultures: Polish vs. Anglo-American	240
1	Emotion and culture	240
2	The scripts of "sincerity"	241
3	The scripts of interpersonal "warmth"	251
4	The scripts of "spontaneity"	255
5	Conclusion	271
7	Emotional universals	273
1	"Emotional universals" – genuine and spurious	273
2	A proposed set of "emotional universals"	275
3	Conclusion	305
	Notes	308
	References	318
	Index	338